QUANTICO MARINES WIN SERVICE CHAMPIONSHIP

In a game which rivaled the Army-Navy game for attendance, color, keen competition, thrills, and football, the Marines won the service championship of the Atlantic States by defeating the picked team representing the Third Corps Area, 13 to 12. Nearly 50,000 spectators thronged the new stadium in Baltimore and poured forth a volume of sound that bid fair to wreck the concrete stands, so intense was the noise.

The game was well played and packed full of thrills. The Marines, while clearly superior to their opponents, were given to fumbling at critical times and these lapses enabled the Army to threaten during the whole game. The big Leatherneck team, with McMains showing unusual judgment and ability, and Goettge plunging through the supposedly strong Army line for repeated gains, swept down the field time after time for a series of first downs, only to lose the ball on fumbles or on unsuccessful tries for field goals. The Army was seldom successful in its attempts to gain by rushing the ball. A few forward passes, however, were successful and gave Army supporters a chance to yell. Vidall, at quarter for the Army, possessed the most powerful toe on the field, and his kicks kept the fighting Leathernecks at a distance throughout most of the game. He was also responsible for two field goals. Both of these came in the first half and in both cases the ball was in Marine territory as the result of punts which were carried by the wind.

The game started as though it was going to be a kicking duel between the two punters. Neither team seemed able to gain by rushing and neither dared to open up so early in the battle. In the first exchange of kicks the Army, with the wind aiding them, had the best of it. It was a kick of Goettge's which the wind carried out of bounds in the Marines' twenty-yard line which gave the Army the opportunity to score their first field goal.

It was not long, however, before the Leatherneck backs settled into their stride and, with the line tearing open wide holes, Goettge tore off tackle for gain after gain, while Sanderson, McMains and Palmer threatened the ends. Football critics are agreed that probably no team in the country has given a better exposition of off-tackle play than that displayed by the Marines at this stage of the game.

The Marines' touchdowns were the direct result of successful forward passes. McMains hammered the line, using Goettge mainly, until he had the Army secondary defense drawn close in, then he crossed his opponents by calling forwards. In both passes Mc-

Mains was on the throwing end and the Army defense was caught unaware.

The Army displayed their best football in the last seven minutes of the game. During this period they were in a position to score twice, but the Marine line came to life and smothered every attempt.

While Goettge was the outstanding star because of his ability to smash his way through whenever called upon to do so, credit must be given every member of the team. McMains particularly deserves unlimited praise. He ran well, passed excellently, ran the team with well nigh perfect judgment, and it was his kick after touchdown which gave the point by which victory was measured. The whole line played excellently and it is difficult to pick outstanding stars. However, mention must be made of the playing of Beckett and McHenry, who were stronger than stone walls on defense and tore open wide holes for the plunging backs.

FOUR MORE MARINES GRADUATED

Four enlisted men of the Marine Corps have completed courses in the Marine Corps Institute and have been awarded diplomas by the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa. Accompanying each diploma sent was a congratulatory letter from the Major General, John A. Lejeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps. The men graduated, the course completed, and the home address of the graduates are as follows:

Corporal Mertie Loyal Douglas, Naval Radio Station, Point Isabel, Texas. Radio Operator's Course. Benton City, Mo.

Corporal Stanley Roberts Hagerman, Quantico, Va. Radio Operator's Course. 17 Leichester St., Perry, N. Y.

Private Edward Joseph Kaminski, Marine Detached, U. S. S. Wyoming, Soil Improvement Course. 9 Barthel St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Private Ellie Rush Killelte, Quantico, Va. Toolmaking Division, Shop Practice. Prattville, Ala.

PARRIS ISLAND WINS SERVICE CHAMPIONSHIP OF SOUTH

The Parris Island Marines won the service championship of the South last week by defeating the powerful team representing the Fourth Army Corps. The game was attended by a large and enthusiastic crowd. General Cole, in command at Parris Island; Colonel Powell, A. P. M., U. S. M. C., and Captain Bower, officer in charge of recruiting in the Southeastern District, were among those who cheered the victorious Leathernecks.

The game created a lot of interest, it being the first large service game which has been played in the South for many years. Many have urged that it be made an annual affair. The conduct of the Marines before, during, and after the game was such that, according to newspapers reports, the citizens of Atlanta have been ardent supporters and are very desirous of having future games played there.

The game was well played and interesting throughout. The Marines displayed marked superiority during the first three quarters. In the last quarter they lost some of their drive and the Army pushed across two touchdowns. The final score was 20 to 13.

Albaugh, at quarter for the Marines, was easily the star of the game, displaying unusual judgment in running the team and exceptional ability as a broken field runner. His work in returning punts and in executing long end runs caused many sporting writers who witnessed the game to rank him as one of the best quarterbacks in the South. Kinbrough, Christian and Busby did admirable work in defense, and between them broke up many Army plays before they were started.

Lieutenant A. L. Johnson has coached the team this season and has developed a team which stacks up as one of the strongest service teams in the country. Captain Bower made the arrangements for the game and was responsible for the admirable manner in which it was handled.

RADIO FLASHES FROM RECRUITERS

Seek 1,200 Enlistments This Month

Twelve hundred enlistments for the month of December is the quota set by the Major General Commandant, and the various Recruiting Divisions are required to furnish the following numbers: Eastern, 475; Central, 325; Southern, 175, and Western, 225. It is expected that recruiters will be able to enlist the required number without difficulty, as in recent weeks there has been a steady increase in the number of applicants.

Indianapolis Gets Large Party

Indianapolis now boasts of having a very large recruiting party. Said large party being Sergeant Francis Tivey, formerly of Quantico, who has joined the recruiting force and is said to be showing marked aptitude as a recruiter. In deference to Sergeant Tivey's ample proportions he has been nicknamed "Tiny" Tivey by his fellow-recruiters. Wedding bells rang in Indianapolis recently, when Corporal Fleming joined the ranks of the benedicts.

4th Brigade Veterans to Organize

It was announced in THE LEATHERNECK a week or two ago that the Belleau Wood Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, comprised exclusively of ex-Marines who fought overseas with the 4th Brigade of Marines, had withdrawn from the V. F. W. One of the members of the Post told the correspondent for THE LEATHERNECK that the withdrawal was made from the V. F. W. on account of the possibility of the Post being enmeshed in political affairs. It was said that the club to be formed by the former Belleau Wood Post would be comprised exclusively of Fourth Brigade men.

Secretary Denby Visits Philadelphia

Secretary of the Navy Denby, accompanied by Mrs. Denby and Edwin Denby, Jr., arrived in Philadelphia on November 24, and attended the Army-Navy football game at Franklin Field the following day. During their stay in the city they were the guests of Colonel David D. Porter and Mrs. Porter at their home in the League Island Navy Yard.

Denver Recruiter Coins Slogan

Sergeant J. J. Murphy, of the Denver recruiting party, won a prize for successfully coining a slogan for the Ansco Camera Company, of Binghamton, N. Y. The prize-winning slogan was "Remember with an Ansco." Sergeant Murphy also suggested two or three other slogans for the company that were highly commended by the advertising department of that concern.

Use Marine Float for Safety Week

The Marine Corps float that won a prize in a parade held in celebration of the opening of the Frankford "L" in Philadelphia, was ordered to Washington to take part in the "Safety Week" campaign last week. The truck was tastefully decorated, the central figure being the device of the Marine Corps, while stacked rifles, machine guns and flags were included in the display.

Coal prescriptions, signed by physicians, are deluging Chicago coal dealers. These prescriptions urge that certain consumers, because of illness or other emergencies, be preferred in coal distribution. In the belief that each instance must be one that demands special consideration the dealers are complying with the demand and furnishing the coal on prescription.

Christmas Is Coming!

I have to buy a book for Tom,
A pipe for Jimmy, too,
A silver chafing-dish for "Mom,"
A ring for Sister Sue.
I chose a pair of gloves for Jean,
Some skates for Sister Nell;
I'll tell the world I'm one Marine
Who sure is S. O. L.

For many days it's been my hope
To get for dear old Dad,
Some real cigars—not made of rope—
The best that can be had.
It's up to me to pay him back,
He rates the best I know,
So I've have got to make some jack
Or raise a pile of dough.

Oh, Christmas is a merry day,
It comes but once a year,
So for those things I'll have to pay
"Though they may cost me dear.
The money for them must be found,
And that's no idle joke.
Oh, why does Christmas come around
Just when a Gyrene's broke?

Our French Visitor

Georges Clemenceau, the French statesman who is at present a visitor to America, is not only a shrewd diplomat, but is also possessed of a ready wit.

It is said concerning one of the meetings of the Peace Council in Paris, that Signor Tittoni did not want it too early, because he liked to have his siesta early in the afternoon. Mr. Lansing did not want it too late, for he wanted to have his drive in the Bois and then his siesta before dinner.

M. Clemenceau then summed up. "The meeting will be at 3," he said. "Signor Tittoni can then sleep before it, and Mr. Lansing can sleep after it, and Mr. Balfour and I can sleep during it."

Marine Recruiting in 1930

Interest in all sorts of sports is rapidly growing in the Marine Corps, so it is not unlikely that conversations similar to the following will be the usual thing in recruiting stations in a few years:

Sergeant: What's your name?

Applicant: John J. Smith.

Sergeant: Former occupation?

Applicant: Railway mail clerk.

Sergeant: State briefly what you know about baseball, running, shooting, swimming, jumping, hammer-throwing, rowing, boxing, tennis, golf and football. If you think you can qualify in one of those sports I'll take you right in to see the doctor.

Why He Was Thankful

"Thanksgiving Day has come and gone and I'm still mighty thankful," confided Spud Murphy to his buddy, during a pause in the drill period.

"How come?" inquired the buddy.

"Early Thanksgiving morning," explained Spud, "one of the lads in the company and myself decided to have a little outing in the country all by ourselves. We grabbed a couple of hens that were running loose around the barracks, and took them along to cook for chow."

"What's that got to do with being thankful?"

"We found out the next morning that those two hens belonged to the 'skipper.'"

"Holy smoke! You people sure got away with murder."

"We did, you know," said Spud.

"That's why I'm going to be thankful today and every other day until the skipper gets wise to who copped his chickens."

Suggestion to H. G. Wells

H. G. Wells, the English writer, has written an admirable book known as "The Outline of History," dealing with world events since time began. Perhaps some day he will want to write an outline of the history of the United States. In that case the only reference book he will need is a history of the U. S. Marine Corps, and he will be able to trace our country's history most thoroughly.

A sign in the Y. M. C. A. asks "Where will you be at sixty-five?" That's a tough question to ask a Marine who just shipped in this outfit.

Ever Meet Him?

At times we meet a smart Marine,

Who's due to take a fall;

You fellows know the lad I mean—

"The guy who knows it all."

It's in the Air

When you see Marines figuring with pencil and paper, and rapidly counting over what is left of their November pay—

When you see them gazing pensively in shop windows, and jingling the spare coins in their pockets—

When you see them cutting down on cigarettes, and trying to save expenses—

When they hang around the first sergeant's office, doping their chances of getting a furlough—

When they break out their sweetheart's photo, and appear to be doing a lot of heavy thinking—

When the talk around the barracks turns more and more to the folks at home—

When you see them heading toward the post office with bundles pasted over with fancy stickers—

Then you may know, without looking at the calendar, that—

Christmas is coming!

Know This Bird?

I know him to my sorrow,

He's always after jack—

The guy who's quick to borrow,

But slow to pay it back.

Answer: Yes, I've heard they are all at sea.

Dear Hash Mark: What is the definition of an island?—Student.

Answer: A wart on the ocean.

FINISH THE YEAR RIGHT

Nearly everyone makes good resolutions at the start of the year. It is our belief that this is a better time for resolutions. Anyone can start well, but it is not everyone who can finish strong, and a strong finish is what really wins.

Marines, have you done the most for yourselves during the year that is drawing to a close? Have you done your duty in a manner to which you can refer with pride? Have you bettered yourself during the year? Have you learned anything which will make you a better Marine, a better citizen or a better man?

You can have no reason for saying that you have had no chance. Every man possesses ability along some line. All he needs is to permit that ability to develop. The Marine Corps Institute can develop the best that is in you. Have you allowed it to do so?

Think it over. There remains sufficient time in this year to enroll and to finish several lesson papers. Or, if you have enrolled and are not active, there is time enough to get much out of the course before the end of the year.

Take stock. Are you just where you were a year ago? Did you plan then to improve your chances? Have you done so? There is still time left—make a strong finish.

SECOND DIVISION VETERANS TO MEET AT MARINE BARRACKS

The veterans of the Second Division residing in Washington and vicinity will hold their annual elections at their next meeting. This meeting will be held at the Band Hall of the Marine Barracks, 8th and I Streets, S. E., Washington, D. C., at 8 p. m., on Tuesday, December 5.

The veterans have been granted the use of the Band Hall on several occasions through the courtesy of the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps, who was also the commanding officer of the Second Division. The use of this place of meeting has been of great service to the veterans.

The veterans are making an effort to get together the largest crowd that has ever attended a meeting. A large delegation from Quantico has promised to attend. There will be plenty of room for all and a liberal supply of "smokes" has been provided.

The election consists of the selection of the following officers: President, vice-president, and secretary and treasurer. The new president will appoint the standing committees for the coming year.

THANKSGIVING MENUS

THE LEATHERNECK has received a number of Thanksgiving menus from the various posts of the Corps. Space does not permit the publication of these and, moreover, there is a marked similarity between them all. In our opinion the most attractive menu among a most appetizing lot was that of the Prison Detachment at the Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H. We will not commit ourselves by declaring that it is the best in the Marine Corps. For one thing, we have no copy of the menu of the 1st Company, 10th Regiment, and the editor knows from experience that the meals prepared by Mess Sergeant James Eagan, a member of the 1st Company since 1913, are second to none. However, the menu of the Prison Detachment was sufficiently attractive to cause the editor to develop an enormous appetite while preparing this article.

Sergeant Daniel Danziger, who served on the West Coast for a number of years, is mess sergeant at Portsmouth, and it appears that the Prison Detachment is fortunate in possessing its services. The menu is as follows:

Oyster Cocktail
Puree of Tomato	Queen Olives	Saltines
Hearts of Celery	Roast Turkey stuffed with Chestnuts	Salted Nuts
Giblet Gravy	Cranberry Sauce
Creamed Whipped Potatoes	Sugar Corn
Green Peas	Sweet Potatoes Southern Style

MARINE BARRACKS FINISHES SEASON WITH WIN

The team from the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., finished a successful football season with a victory over the Independent A. C. of Alexandria, Va. The final score was 13 to 6, but the Marines undoubtedly could have scored additional points had they not desired to give every member of the squad a chance in the game. The season was a very successful one for the Barracks' team. Four strong teams were defeated, one tied, and two teams managed to score victories. The winning teams were the Mercury Athletic Club, now listed as District champions, who just did put across a 6-to-0 win, and the Mohawk A. C., runners-up for the title.

The Marines considered the game against the Army Engineers from Camp Humphrey as their most important game and the 44-to-0 victory was extremely gratifying to their supporters. Next in importance to this game was the final game against the Independent A. C. The Independents' own victories over nearly all the strongest teams of the District and the fact the Marines took them into camp establishes the Barracks team as unusually strong for a team representing a small post.

MARINE VETERANS HOLD DINNER

The Marine veterans of New York and vicinity attended a very successful get-together dinner on the Pennsylvania roof in New York recently. Many organizations were represented at the dinner, but the 23d Company led all the rest, with nine members present. The 77th Company claimed ten, but failed to produce the extra man.

Corporal Cloutman, who is now assistant counsel to the Transit Commission of New York City, acted as spokesman for the members of the 23d and challenged all other organization to produce an equal number of enthusiastic ex-Leathernecks.

After the dinner and dancing, the former 23d Company men were the guests of W. B. Schreiber at his home, in Brooklyn, where practically the whole of the remaining hours of the night were spent in pleasant reminiscence.

The following men, who style themselves "still and always a part of the 23d Company," were present: Harold J. Cloutman, 5 Montague Terrace, Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. B. Schreiber, 183 Chauncey Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Leo A. Whalen, 21 S. Washington Street, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; David A. de Lima, 314 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Maxwell Smith, 8 Wilber Street, Amsterdam, N. Y.; Herry E. Olsen, 140 Lander Street, Newburg, N. Y.; R. Scott Ohlweiler, 10 Blackman Place Bethel, Conn.; Arthur Clifford, 68 Livingston Place, Bridgeport, Conn.; Charles Mikelberg, 369 Williams Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MARINES ON THE PITTSBURGH ENJOYING CRUISE

The Marines who left on the cruiser Pittsburgh for European waters on October 2, are thoroughly enjoying their cruise so far, according to First Sergeant A. H. Steele, of the U. S. Marine guard on that vessel, who writes to THE LEATHERNECK from Gibraltar in a letter postmarked November 3.

The Marines first visited Las Palmas, a city of 44,000 and chief seaport of the Canary Islands. Many of the Marines were disappointed to find that the islands did not live up to their name so far as canary bird production is concerned, the islands being almost devoid of the popular feathered songsters.

The arrival of the Pittsburgh at Gibraltar was
